The Mental Health Association of Lebanon County has compiled this directory of Mental Health Providers based on their responses. The MHA can not endorse or recommend any one provider, but can assist you in determining the type of service that addresses your needs. Reading the complete directory including credentials, fees and areas of specialization is recommended. The MHA attempted to contact all known providers and regrets any omissions.

The Directory is divided into three sections. The first section defines terms and answers questions about seeking help. Section two is an alphabetical listing of providers giving names, addresses, telephone numbers and areas of specialization. This section is organized by: I. Hospitals, II. Agencies, III. Counseling Groups (a group is defined as having more than one person) and IV. Individual Counselors.

The third section is an alphabetical listing of single providers, their services and areas of specialization. These are printed as the providers gave us the information. Some providers did not list every area of specialization and some services may be called by a different name by different providers. It is best to call and check if you have questions.

The Mental Health Association is a private, non-profit organization. We are United Way funded. Our mission is to promote good mental health, prevent mental illness and to insure the best possible service for the treatment of those living with a mental illness.

We are located at 15 South 9th St., Lebanon, PA 17042. Telephone: (717) 273-5781. Fax: (717) 273-6908. E-mail: mhaoffice@mhaleb.org. Our office hours are 8:30 a.m. – 2:00 p.m. Please feel free to contact the office with any questions or comments.

Seeking help is never easy. Only one in five people suffering from a mental disorder ever seek help. But help is available and the success rate in treatment is high, in some cases, higher than the success rate for medical illnesses such as heart disease or cancer. Recent advances in the understanding of how our mind and body interact have made it possible to treat mental illness more successfully than ever. If you need help please seek help so that you or your relative or friend can begin to feel better and live life to its fullest.

However, a couple of “blue” days are not the same as a mental illness.

WHO ARE MENTAL HEALTH PROVIDERS?

Primary Care Physician (M.D., D.O.) - A good place to start is often with your doctor or primary care physician. A physical examination may rule out other causes and many primary care physicians are knowledgeable about psychiatric disorders.

Psychiatrist (M.D., D.O.) - A medical doctor who has completed four years of specialty training after medical school. Psychiatrists can prescribe medication and supervise its use. Some psychiatrists prefer to manage medication only and may refer the patient to another therapist for psychotherapy.

Psychologist (Ph.D., Psy. D., Ed.D., M.D.) - Psychologists are trained in the evaluation and treatment of emotional problems. They always have at least a Masters Degree (two years of graduate training) and often a doctorate (five years of post undergraduate training).

Psychiatric or Clinical Social Worker (M.S.W., A.C.S.W., L.C.S.W.) - Social Work is a highly varied specialty; generally they have been trained to work directly with people and under the supervision of other professionals.

Family Therapists (M.F.T., M.S., M.A.) - Therapists trained in graduate programs or special certificate programs designed to give them specific experiences and training with families and their relationships.

Pastoral Counselors - Many pastors take post-masters programs in pastoral counseling and psychotherapy.

Other Mental Health Care Providers (M.Ed., L.P.C.) - There are many other types of mental health workers with a variety of degrees and level of expertise. It is quite appropriate to ask a mental health professional about the nature of his or her education, training, experience, certification, and licenser.

PPI represents a commitment to enhanced collaboration, continuity of care, and growth among existing mental health services in Central Pennsylvania. PPI offers inpatient care, with a 16-bed child-and-adolescent unit and 58 adult beds on three distinct units. PPI’s outpatient and partial hospitalization services are housed in 3 clinical sites in Harrisburg and one in Hershey. In addition, Penn State Hershey faculty also provides psychiatric consultation to the Pinnacle Health System and the Hershey Medical Center hospitals.

Facilities:

The Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute is located on the PinnacleHealth Polyclinic Campus, 2501 North Third Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-2098

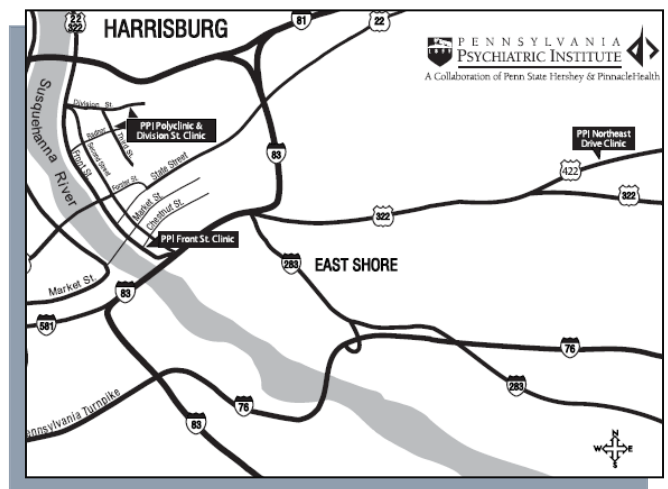

The Division Street Clinic (formerly known as Milestones) is an outpatient treatment center serving adults dually diagnosed with both mental illness and mental retardation. It is located at 401 Division Street, near the PinnacleHealth Polyclinic Campus.

The Front Street Clinic is a treatment center providing outpatient and partial hospitalization programs for children and adolescents. It is located at 307 South Front Street at the PinnacleHealth Harrisburg Campus.

The Northeast Drive Clinic provides outpatient services for all ages as well as adult partial hospitalization. It is located at 22 Northeast Drive in Hershey, PA.

Adult Psychiatric Programs

The Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute (PPI) offers a wide array of inpatient and outpatient services for adults with mental illness. All care is personal, confidential and comprehensive.

Our Adult Inpatient Psychiatric Program treats adult psychiatric patients that are struggling to overcome a mental illness that has significantly disrupted their daily activities. This program is designed for patients who are unable to care for themselves or loved ones due to their mental illness and may need to be voluntarily or involuntarily admitted to the hospital to become stabilized.

Our Adult Partial Hospitalization Psychiatric Program is for adult psychiatric patients that need more treatment than traditional outpatient services can provide, but do not necessarily need inpatient hospitalization. This program is also designed for adults that have needed the safety and structure of an inpatient stay and now need to continue daily treatment following their return home.

Our Adult Outpatient Psychiatric Program is less restrictive level of care that allows individuals to seek treatment for mental health issues while continuing to maintain their daily life. Often, those in recovery who have completed an inpatient psychiatric program continue treatment and follow up through an outpatient program.

PPI also offers a number of special services and clinics to meet the needs of patients with specific mental disorders, including a bipolar clinic, Clozaril clinic, and mood disorder clinic.

Mature Adult Psychiatric Programs

Mature adults can have unique issues when it comes to mental illness. The Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute (PPI) recognizes these issues and has designed a number of programs specifically for older adults who may be suffering from mental illnesses or psychiatric disorders.

Our Mature Adult Inpatient Psychiatric Program is designed for adults age 55 and older who require inpatient psychiatric care due to a mental illness that has significantly disrupted their daily activities. This program is also offered to older adults who are physically frail or require assistance with daily activities like walking.

Our Mature Adult Outpatient Psychiatric Program is for older adults who require short-term mental health treatment. This program recognizes the impact aging has on one's mental health and provides treatment that effectively acknowledges aging and mental illness on an outpatient basis.

Our Mature Adult Psychiatric Assessment Program provides comprehensive evaluations by a psychiatrist and a neuropsychologist to assess for Dementia, including Alzheimer's disease. Follow up appointments for medication management are provided as well as support and education for the family.

Child & Adolescent Psychiatric Programs

The Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute (PPI) offers a full range of inpatient and outpatient psychiatric services for children and adolescents. All of these services are delivered in safe, nurturing environments. The goal of all therapies is for each child and adolescent to return successfully to his or her home, school and community.

Our Child & Adolescent Inpatient Psychiatric Program is designed for children and adolescents who are experiencing emotional disorders that prevent them from functioning in school, home or a community setting. This program provides therapeutic and diagnostic treatment planning specific to the individual needs of the child – age 14-17; 18 if still in school.

Our Child & Adolescent Partial Hospitalization Psychiatric Program is designed for children and adolescents who require mental health treatment in a structured, day treatment setting. This program is ideal as a step-up from outpatient psychiatric services or a step-down from inpatient psychiatric services.

Our Adolescent Intensive Outpatient Psychiatric Program allows children and adolescents to receive mental health treatment in an intensive outpatient setting one to three evenings per week. This program is for children and adults who no longer can be maintained through traditional outpatient psychiatric services, but have been discharged from inpatient or partial hospitalization psychiatric services.

Our Child & Adolescent Outpatient Psychiatric Program is a less restrictive level of care and allows children and adolescents to receive outpatient treatment while continuing to maintain their normal family and school commitments. Children and adolescents who have completed an inpatient psychiatric program typically continue treatment through our outpatient psychiatric service.

PPI offers a number of special services and clinics to meet the needs of young patients with specific mental disorders. Some of these disorders commonly suffered by children and adolescents are Autism Spectrum Disorder Clinic, ADHD Clinic, and Mood Disorder Clinic.

Programs for Mental Illness and Mental Retardation/Development Disabilities

Who this Program Treats - For a person suffering from mental retardation or development disabilities, day-to-day functions may be a challenge. At Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute (PPI), we recognize that the combination of mental retardation/development disabilities and mental illness/psychiatric disorders can be a challenge for the patient and the family.

People suffering from mental retardation or development disabilities face struggles when dealing with mental illness including depression, anxiety disorders, affective disorders, psychotic disorders, schizophrenia, avoidant disorders and dementias. Therefore, they may require specific programs.

Services this Program Offers - The Division Street Clinic (formerly called “Milestones”) in Harrisburg is an outpatient treatment center serving adults dually diagnosed with both mental illness and mental retardation. All patients must have adequate verbal and cognitive abilities to participate in group therapy.

Programs include:

Adult Intensive Outpatient Program - This program is for adults age 19 to 65 with a mental health disorder and moderate to borderline mental retardation. Those enrolled in this program participate in group therapy, receiving three hours of therapy up to three days a week. The therapy sessions discuss goals established by the patient and therapist and intensively focus on coping skills and problem solving related to those goals.

Adult Partial Hospitalization Program - Through this program, adults who have a developmental disability/mental retardation receive mental health treatment aimed at alleviating problems/symptoms and enhance quality of life. Patients receive treatment from a variety of mental health experts, including psychiatrist, therapists and psychiatric nurses. Treatment includes a series of three to six hours of group therapy. If on medication, the patient has regularly scheduled visits with the psychiatrist.

Outpatient Medication Program - Through this program, adults who have a developmental disability/ mental retardation and who have a diagnosed psychiatric disorder receive a psychiatric evaluation and ongoing medication management.

Older Adult Program - This program is for adults age 65 and over who have chronic psychiatric problems. The program provides psychiatric evaluations, group therapy and medication management.

Dementia Assessment - While there is currently no cure for dementia or Alzheimer’s disease, an early diagnosis can mean more effective treatment that can help slow the progression of these conditions. This program evaluates adults age 65 and older for dementia and Alzheimer’s disease. The three-hour evaluation includes neuropsychiatric testing by a psychologist. Follow up appointments for medication management can be provided, as well as support and education for the family.

Getting Started - For more information about the services offered at the Division Street Clinic, call (717) 782-4349.

Electroconvulsive Therapy (ECT)

Who this Program Treats - Electroconvulsive therapy (ECT) is a procedure used to treat severe depression. It may be used for people who have delusions, hallucinations or suicidal thoughts or when other treatments such as psychotherapy and antidepressant medications have not worked. It is also used for other psychiatric and neurological conditions, such as schizophrenia and Parkinson’s disease.

What ECT Involves - ECT is performed under anesthesia and the patient is asleep. During the procedure, the brain is briefly stimulated with electricity. This causes a small seizure. It is believed that the seizure results in a beneficial change in brain chemistry. ECT has a high success rate in patients with depression.

ECT is given as a series of treatments – usually 6 - 12 treatments over 2 - 4 weeks. General anesthesia is administered by an anesthesiologist and nurse anesthetist. The procedure lasts 20 to 30 minutes. Side effects are primarily associated with anesthesia, but may result from the ECT itself. Because of the effects of anesthesia, you may not remember the procedure. You may experience some short-term memory loss, confusion, nausea, headache, jaw pain, muscle aches and/or soreness immediately following ECT. These effects may last several hours. A few people have reported long-term memory loss.

Treatment Schedule - Electroconvulsive therapy is administered Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons at the Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute's ECT suite on the 5th floor of the Landis Building.

Preparation for ECT includes:

- Having clear liquids the morning of the treatment for inpatients
- Nothing by mouth after midnight except morning medications with a sip of water for outpatients
- An EKG (for patients over 50), blood work, recent medical history and physical, and signed consent forms

Referral Process - Physicians who wish to refer a patient for ECT should have the following information ready when they call to make a referral:

- General patient information
- Presenting symptoms
- Medical and family history
- Current treatment
- Current medications (if applicable)
- Current living arrangements

If anyone other than a doctor is making a referral, please know that a patient must be willing to sign in for voluntary treatment. An admission coordinator or counselor from the Triage and Evaluation Center (TEC) will:

- Ask about medical and legal status
- Review admission criteria and eligibility with psychiatrist
- If met, schedule an intake assessment

Getting Started - For information about electroconvulsive therapy, please call the Triage and Evaluation Center at (717) 782-6493 or (866) 746-2429 any time of the day or night.
